

Proudly celebrating a Chinese Tasmanian collaboration to produce world class wines from the Coal River's ancient soils.

Planted in 2000 in the Coal River Valley in Southern Tasmania, Nocton Vineyard sits on ancient layered soils of Jurassic black cracking clays over limestone. In only 40 years, this area has become firmly established as one of Australia's prestige cool climate wine regions and Nocton, as one of the most significant vineyard sites in the valley, is proud to be a part of that tradition.

Tasting Notes

2016 was an early, exuberant year with big berries and juicy flavours. The joy of pinot really comes out in this wine. Its fresh and bright and pretty with lashings of red fruits.

Winemaking

Designed to show off the vineyard's specific flavours, cool ferment in tank to preserve primary fruit is embellished with approximately 15% old wood maturation to enhance the savoury notes. Generally, we try to let our 200 million year old soils do the talking.

Food

A really young, soft cheese, some fresh bread and maybe a few olives...oh yes!
